WOMAN MEETS DEATH IN AUTO ACCIDENT

As the result of three separate automobile accidents in the Colma "bottle neck" last Sunday, one woman is dead, four others were seriously hurt and five men were painfully injured.

Mrs. Emma Hines, of 1828 Anza street, San Francisco, was killed when the automobile in which she was a passenger was struck by a San Mateo bound street car, Mrs. Hines being instantly killed and the other passengers being carried for a distance of more than 200 feet, all being injured.

Ralph Benevenga, the driver, and Miss Madeline Burns and Miss Alice Renelson, all of San Francisco, were the other occupants of the automobile. Benevenga was arrested on a charge of manslaughter as a result of the accident, and taken to the county jail at Redwood City. Following his arraignment he was released on $500 cash bond.

The fatal smash occurred when Benevenga, who was driving the ill-fated car, attempted to cross the Market Street Railway tracks from the "bottle neck" opposite the Cypress Lawn cemetery. The street car, which it is claimed was traveling at its usual speed, struck the automobile head-on, killing Mrs. Hines instantly, and carrying the others for more than 200 feet.

According to eye witnesses, all of the three distressing accidents of the day were directly attributable to the inadequacy of the present highway.

The other two accidents were the results of collisions between automobiles, the narrowness of the roadway being blamed. All those injured in these later accidents were able to leave the South San Francisco hospital after treatment.

The body of the woman who met death was taken to the undertaking establishment of W. C. Lasswell & Co., Daly City, and an inquest was held at the offices of Mrs. Lucella Pepper, deputy coroner. The coroner's jury failed to place responsibility for the accident.

Charging the motorman of the interurban car with responsibility for the accident in which Mrs. Hines lost her life, David A. Fall, national intercollegiate diving champion and a student at Stanford University, appeared before the district attorney at Redwood City on Wednesday. Fall, who appeared voluntarily at the office of the prosecutor, declared that he had witnessed the accident, which he said occurred as Benevenga's car was stalled on the car track. Plain view of the machine was afforded the motorman for a distance of about 500 feet from the point of collision, Fall is reported to have told the district attorney. Instead of slowing down in view of the blocked crossing, the motorman did not apply his brakes until within about 25 feet of the automobile, Fall testified.

FISHERMAN PAYS PENALTY FOR EXCEEDING THE LIMIT

Charles Latieze, of San Francisco, is an enthusiastic fisherman, but in the future he will be more careful as to the time and manner in which he does his fishing. And it is a safe bet that in the future he will confine his catch to the amount limited by the law.

Latieze was brought before Judge Ellis C. Johnson last Monday, charged with having in his possession at one time seventy-six trout, which he admitted were beauties. In addition to having exceeded the limit in the number of trout a sportsman is expected to take, Latieze began his fishing a little early in the year, in fact he made his catch before the opening of the trout fishing season, thus having fractured the law in two separate and distinct places.

Judge Johnson admits that he is fond of trout, but not so fond of breakers of the laws protecting the finny tribe, hence he assessed the guilty fisherman the sum of $200. And the next time Latieze goes fishing he will probably remember his lesson, and will not take to the streams before the opening day as prescribed by the law. He will in all probability also confine his efforts to a reasonable catch.

MRS. LENZ CELEBRATES EIGHTIETH ANNIVERSARY

Mrs. Marie Lenz celebrated her eightieth birthday, April 24, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Hesselein, of Daly City.

Most of her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren came to celebrate this day with her. Mrs. Lenz is enjoying fine health and claims that this was the happiest day for her for many years.

A wonderful birthday dinner was served in her honor. The day was spent in relating many things that happened during the many years of her life. Mrs. Lenz was the recipient of many presents.

The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. John Hesselein, Mr. and Mrs. B. Wernsman, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Fischer, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Wernsman, of Oakland; Mr. Fred Wernsman, of Sacramento; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mullin, Mrs. Ida Preston, Mr. John George Hesselein, Mr. Emil Hesselein, of Daly City; Mr. Vic Dickson, Mr. John Meyer, Mrs. Frieda Cook, of San Francisco; Misses Mae Fischer, Myrtle Mullin, Dorothy Cook; Masters Fred Fischer, William J. Preston, Robert J. Mullin, Jr.

A special birthday greeting was received from her son, Mr. Fred Lenz, and family, from South Dakota, and Alabama, who could not attend the celebration.

POOR BOX THIEF CAUGHT BY DOYLE

A man giving the name of Thomas Costello, believed to be a professional church thief, was arrested in Daly City last week by Marshal Jack Doyle, who caught Costello in the act of robbing the poor box of St. Maximus church.

Costello was busy probing the poor box with the aid of a wire when he was surprised by ladies of the church, who quickly got in touch with Marshal Doyle, who arrested Costello as he was in the act of withdrawing the coins from the box.

In the arrest of Costello, police officials of the peninsula believe that the man who has robbed numerous poor boxes and pastor's studies has been captured. Within the last three months, six churches in Palo Alto have been robbed of small amounts of money and portable objects. Palo Alto pastors have also complained to the police that their studies have been entered during their absence and that small sums of money and small objects have been stolen. Similar complaints from other towns in the peninsula have been made by churchmen.

The quick action of Marshal Doyle has resulted in the apprehension of this petty thief, who will in all probability now have plenty of leisure and an opportunity to think over his misdeeds.

MORINI IS GRANTED DIVORCE FROM WIFE

By a decree of the Superior Court issued in San Francisco last Friday, Ubaldo Morini, was freed from his wife, over whose alleged theft he shot and killed Americo Funnuchi at Colma on March 1. Judge Griffin of San Francisco granted the divorce upon the testimony of Morini and a neighbor. He refused to permit 16-year-old Mary Morini to take the stand against her mother, saying that the evidence already submitted was sufficient.

Morini claimed that Funnuchi stole the affections of Mrs. Morini and took her to Tijuana, where the two were required to leave after the "shame suicide" scandal some months ago. They returned to Half Moon Bay. Morini, on his way to Half Moon Bay on business on March 1, encountered Funnuchi in front of a restaurant in Colma. He fired four shots into his body and then gave himself up. A jury in Redwood City recently found Morini not guilty of murder and set him free.

SPRING FOOTBALL PRACTICE HELD BY JEFFERSON HIGH

The student body of Jefferson Union high school held its regular meeting last Tuesday. Coach Cooley announced that for the first time Jefferson will have spring football practice. Joe Drucker was announced captain of the unlimited baseball team, and "Chuck" Aiello captain of the 130-pound nine.

It was announced that the constitution would be voted on at the next meeting.

The grammar school track meet will be held May 14, under the auspices of Jefferson high.

The price of the school annual, Jefferson Spirit, to those who subscribe before April 30 will be $1, after that $1.25.

CITY TRUSTEES FAVOR MORE PLAY GROUNDS

The newly organized board of trustees of Daly City held its first meeting last Monday evening at the City Hall.

A message was sent to the city of San Francisco, recommending that a sidewalk be put in on the east side of Mission street between Acton and Templeton. Daly City has paved all of her portion of Mission street, and if San Francisco does her duty in this matter, there will be a sidewalk from the southern city limits of Daly City to the Ferry.

The new city planning committee, under the direction of A. J. Bodien, has decided that Daly City is badly in need of play-grounds. Within two weeks the upper level of the Park will be graded and leveled off, and in a few months excellent play-ground apparatus will be installed.

A request was received for the opening of a new street in the Lindhome Manor, extending from Acton to Oliver, and from Brunswick to Hanover. Only one strip of land in the way of the street is unsettled, but next Monday the board will vote on this.

Three new lights of the large type were ordered installed, one at the county line, one in front of the Eagles Hall, and one on Hillcrest near Mission. This last light was put in principally to stop petty thieving from machines parked on Hillcrest.

On motion of A. J. Bodien it was decided to ask the postmaster general for mail service on Frankfort street, where a number of new houses are being erected.

A light and fire box were ordered installed at Frankfort and Roosevelt.

EL CARMELO PARLOR PLANS WHIST PARTY AND DANCE

The first of a series of monthly whist parties sponsored by El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, Native Daughters of the Golden West, will be held on Wednesday evening, May 5. The party will be held in Masonic Hall. There will be the usual number of splendid attractions, and dancing will take place immediately after the game.

These whist parties are given by El Carmelo Parlor for the sole purpose of stimulating acquaintanceship and friendship among the members of the order and their families. The general public is also extended a cordial invitation to be present.

Members of the committee on arrangements for this event are the President, Mrs. Margaret McDonald, and the officers of the Parlor. Remember the date, May 5, on Wednesday evening, and the place, Masonic Hall, Daly City.

SHERIFF T. C. MCGOVERN ANNOUNCES CANDIDACY

Sheriff T. C. McGovern has announced his candidacy to succeed himself as sheriff of San Mateo county.

Sheriff McGovern is a product of San Mateo county. He was born and raised in the county. His father was one of the early pioneers, having come to San Mateo county in 1857 and resided here continuously until his death in 1922.

Sheriff McGovern served as a deputy under Sheriff R. S. Catham. He served as a deputy in the recorder's office for five years. He thereafter served as a deputy under Sheriff Sheehan for five years. He later became under sheriff under the late H. W. Lampkin, and served in that capacity for one year, and at the untimely death of Sheriff Lampkin, he was appointed by the board of supervisors to fill the unexpired term of Sheriff Lampkin.

Some of the incorporated cities of the county have perhaps twice as many deputies as has the sheriff's office. It is generally conceded, however, that in spite of the need of more help, the rapid growth of the county, and the close proximity to large centers of population, that the sheriff has made good.

Sheriff McGovern has been recognized as absolutely honest. He has been active and efficient. He has had a constant co-operation of the police departments of San Francisco and the surrounding cities.

Sheriff McGovern makes no idle promises. He offers to carry on in the same honest and efficient manner in which he has worked during the past four years.

Seeking Booze Runners

Working on a tip that the $50,000 load of bonded whiskey hijacked by a gang of twelve men from a vault in the Monterey home of A. K. Macomber is cached in San Mateo county, federal officials are conducting an exhaustive search of lonely spots along San Mateo county highways.

LOCAL EAGLES PLAN VISIT TO YOSEMITE

The members of Colma Vista-Grande Aerie No. 1848, Fraternal Order of Eagles, have been working hard during the past week, preparing for the Eagles' state convention in Yosemite Valley, May 6 to 13.

The drum corps has been practicing for some time on the Jefferson Union high school grounds. A big silver loving cup has been won twice by our local Aerie for the best drum corps in the state. Should they win it again this year, it will become their property, as the rules require that the cup shall be awarded to the same drum corps three times before they can claim permanent possession of the trophy.

All Daly City and Colma are in hope that the drum corps comes out victorious on this occasion, and there seems good reason to expect that when the boys have returned from the convention they will bring with them the coveted cup. If they don't, the drum corps that wins will surely know they have been in a race.

MRS. L. G. OWEN HEAD OF COUNTY P. T. A.

The San Mateo County Federation of Parent-Teacher Associations last Friday elected Mrs. L. G. Owens president at a meeting held at the Turnbull grammar school, San Mateo. Other officers elected for the new term were: Mrs. J. J. Garland, vice-president; Mrs. J. E. Baughn, second vice-president; Mrs. Allan Hunt, treasurer; Mrs. J. G. Keefe, recording secretary; Mrs. W. A. Wood, corresponding secretary; Mrs. W. H. Kimball, financial secretary; Mrs. Byrd Marshall, historian; Mrs. W. Gatchell, auditor; and Mrs. Earl Steinbeck, parliamentarian.

A feature of the meeting was a short talk on four important subjects by Mrs. Ward Campbell, president of the Oakland Federation. Mrs. Campbell touched briefly on "The Recent Pre-School Drive in Oakland," "Work of the Junior High School," "Books," and "Public School Week."

Other speakers were Miss Victoria Roussel, of Belmont, who told of the "Poster Exhibition" held recently at the Federation and district conventions. She announced that the prizes were to be awarded soon.

Mesdames Owen, Sheppard, Grabowski and Kimball gave their impressions of the district convention held recently at the Fairmont Hotel, San Francisco. Mrs. Sheppard also gave a report on the dental clinic activities, stating that the San Mateo P. T. A. had purchased a chair and other equipment, and that all the dentists in San Mateo had offered their services. The Burlingame clinic is to be started next fall.

Discussion of the "pre-school drive" organized by the national P. T. A., and which is to be held on May 4 and 5 at the Central and McKinley schools, San Mateo, commanded the attention of the meeting.

It was announced that the county reciprocity luncheon will be held at the San Mateo Woman's Clubhouse, May 13. Presidents of the districts will be guests of honor.

ASKS DAMAGES FOR DEATH OF HELPMATE

Suit for $25,000 damages was filed last week in the Superior Court at Redwood City by Charles F. Parker against August E. and S. Lombardi, prominent residents of San Bruno. Parker in his complaint alleges that his wife, Mary E. Parker, died as the result of injuries sustained when she was run down at the intersection of San Mateo Drive and El Camino Real, September 9, 1924, from which she died August 30, 1925. He also alleges that young Lombardi was driving in a careless and reckless manner and was responsible for the accident and resulting death of Mrs. Parker.

Parker's action is based on the allegation that young Lombardi is a minor, and that on January 16, 1920, when he was but 14 years of age, he filed an application for a driver's license with the state motor vehicle department at Sacramento. The driver's license was granted to young Lombardi with the proviso that the father assume all responsibility for the acts of the son as a driver.

Woman Crushed Under Wardrobe

Mrs. Helen Garcia Frates, former resident of Redwood City and member a pioneer San Mateo county family, was accidentally crushed to death in a room of a hotel at San Jose last Sunday night, when a heavy wardrobe fell upon her. The body was found the following morning, and it is not known how the accident occurred.

THE GENERAL PERSHING SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT

Mrs. Edith L. Hassett and her able assistants, Misses Eleanor Brown, Eugenia Cagliada and Henrietta Engel, accomplished something out of the ordinary last Friday evening, when they succeeded in bringing all their children and their parents and friends over to Ryan's hall, on the opposite side of this city, for the time being. It was a regular exodus and not a few thought it was reckless to attempt it, nevertheless the hall was filled with an audience of adults.

W. J. Savage, the district superintendent, was drafted to be the chairman of the occasion, and he enjoyed the position, as it gave him opportunity to recall that it was in Ryan's hall that the first school room of this city was started in 1909, while now four buildings with twenty-six rooms brimming full are required to supply the demand, and still they come.

It was also a pleasure to state that the Pershing has always been noted as the school in which every child feels the obligation, continually, of doing all that can be done. Neither time nor material, water or gas, are wasted there. Every minute, every day, the drive to get the greatest advancement goes on steadily. There is never any let up. If the regular hours are not enough, more time is taken without the slightest hesitation. To get through a minute before the usual quitting time is unheard of. Earnest people do not watch the clock. As a consequence, every child learns the valuable habit of duty and advances far beyond the standard set for the years. Even deficient children acquire the habit of working and learning. No one is considered hopeless and then neglected.

The final thought is: A person who does not get the best and all that is in the child is not worthy of the name of teacher. The children of the Pershing school become strong throughout their whole subsequent careers, simply because the foundation has been laid as it should be.

The people appreciate such teaching, and they give thanks that their children have the opportunity afforded by such teachers as Mrs. Hassett and her associates.

The following program was rendered:

Greetings by the Toy Soldiers.

Recitation, "Four Leaf Clovers," by Peggy Murray.

School Orchestra by Kindergarten and First Graders.

Song and Dance, Second and Third Graders.

Recitation, "They Always Pick on Me," by Margaret Steele.

Ballet Dance, by Alecia Fields.

At the Dance, by First and Second Graders.

Recitation, "I've Got the Mumps," by Donald Morrison.

"Felix and the Doll and the Doll's Mother," by Betty Best, Phillis Best and Joan Mackey.

Songs by the School, and as an end "The Parade."

Roy W. Cloud, former county superintendent, who was present, when called upon spoke in a complimentary manner of the good work that is being done.

The Parent-Teachers' Associations, led by Mrs. Landini, did all they could to make the affair a success. While the dance went on, coffee and cake were served. The heaviest fruit cake ever made, the work of Mrs. Hassett, was offered as a token of the evening and it fell into the hands of W. J. Savage. Four other cakes went as consolations. The total receipts approached $100.

Altogether it was a whooping success for the General Pershing school.

BALDWIN WOOD ENDS LIFE AT SAN JOSE

Baldwin Wood, San Francisco clubman, sought on warrants charging embezzlement following his confessed loss on the stock market of a $400,000 fortune belonging to members of his family, was found dead in a room in a San Jose hotel last Wednesday, he having ended his life. A length of flexible tubing, one end at the gas jet, the other in his mouth, gave evidence of the means of his death.

Baldwin Wood was for many years a favorite in society circles and was well known on the peninsula, especially in San Mateo and Burlingame. Wood, with his family, once lived on a magnificent estate back of the Homestead district, south of San Mateo. He was greatly interested in horses, and was a familiar figure on the streets of San Mateo.

Wood disappeared about a month ago, and was found at a Los Gatos sanitarium, where he confessed that he had lost everything, his own fortune, his wife's money and huge sums belonging to his mother-in-law. Later he disappeared, and officers were searching for him when he ended his life.

REDWOOD CITY MAY ANNEX FIVE POINTS

It is understood that the residents of Five Points district, adjoining Redwood City on the south, are preparing for annexation to Redwood City, and that petitions for an election by which the entire Five Points area will be joined to the county seat are being circulated by those leading in the annexation movement. It is claimed that more than 15 per cent of the registered voters in the district are ready to sign the petition, and the backers of the proposition claim the election will be carried by a good majority.

The inauguration of the annexation movement follows plans announced by the San Mateo county supervisors to form an improvement district in the Five Points area for installation of sidewalks, sewers and paving.

Increased taxes for these improvements under the district plan will, it is claimed, approximate those of Redwood City, so that residents and property owners of Five Points would be benefited by amalgamation with the city of Redwood.

In addition, it is urged, residents of the district would receive fire and police protection, with street cleaning and other facilities not provided for under the county improvement plan.

These features make it practical for annexation at this time in view of the small difference in taxes between amalgamation and the district plan of improvement, proponents of annexation claim.

Regulation of traffic congestion at the junction of the Woodside road and El Camino Real, in the center of the Five Points district, would be brought under jurisdiction of Redwood City police, an important feature with residents of the immediate vicinity.

ANNUAL MUSIC WEEK BEGINS THIS SUNDAY

An impressive sacred concert, in which churches of all denominations will participate, will usher in San Francisco's sixth annual Music week, on Sunday afternoon, at the Exposition Auditorium, beginning at 3 p. m. Mrs. Alvina Heuer Willson will be chairman of the concert. Two vested choirs of boys, from the Sacred Heart school and from the Mission Dolores, will open and close the concert. An excellent program has been prepared for the afternoon concert.

The concert, as in all of the events arranged for Music week, May 2 to 8, by the San Francisco Civic Association, in co-operation with the Auditorium committee of the board of supervisors, are all free to the public.

Special Music week services will be held at the Ebenezer Lutheran church on Sunday morning, May 2, at 11, with selections from the "Redemption" by Heine, and in the evening at Calvary Presbyterian church, Guionod's "Solemn Mass; Howard Presbyterian church, special musical service; St. John's Presbyterian church, special music. St. Patrick's church chimes will sound at noon and at 7 p. m. daily during Music week.

Other Music week events on Sunday, May 2, will include an 8 p. m. concert at the Fairmont Hotel, Rudy Seiger, director; an afternoon concert of baso music at Funston Park, beginning at 2 p. m., under the directorship of Phil Sapiro; an organ recital at the California Palace of the Legion of Honor, Marshall W. Gieselman, organist; and a band concert at 2 p. m. at Golden Gate Park.

HIT AND RUN CHARGE RESULT OF ACCIDENT

Arthur Wilson, of Burlingame, was held to answer to the Superior Court on a charge of failing to render aid after an automobile accident after he had been given a preliminary hearing in the court of Justice of the Peace Josephine Lamb last Friday.

Wilson is charged with having struck the automobile of Mrs. Frances Wilson, of San Francisco, on the highway near Beresford, injuring Mrs. Wilson. With Mrs. Wilson were Mr. and Mrs. William Bassett and Robert Mann, who were driving to a San Mateo funeral parlor when the accident occurred. Mann was going to view the remains of his brother, Harry Mann, killed in an automobile accident the night previous.

School Band Wins Prize

The band of the San Mateo Union high school won second prize in the big Boys' week parade held last Saturday in San Francisco. The band has developed into one of the finest musical organizations in California high schools and frequently has won high praise and numerous cups for parade performance and for concert ability.

SUCCESS IN AMERICA
AN OPEN HIGHWAY

How Four Boys of Humble Origin Have Become Chiefs of the Greatest Financial Organization in the World.

Broad highways of achievement are wide open to all in America no matter how humble their beginning. It is brought out by a writer in Forbes Magazine, telling of the successive elevation of poor boys to the chieftainship of the most powerful association of financial power in the world.

"Nowhere is opportunity so democratic as in caste-free America, nowhere is recognition for faithful service so little conditioned by inherited position and wealth," the article says. "The bounty of America in bestowing her rewards of great success upon those of modest origin is again notably manifest in the rise of Oscar Wells to the presidency of the American Bankers Association.

"The son of a tanner, John H. Puelicher, was elected to this eminence in 1922. Circumstances ended his public schooling in the seventh year and he went to work in a carpet store in Milwaukee. At sixteen he entered a bank as a clerk, rising step by step until he became president. Recognition of his abilities as a banker and civic service through public education in sound economic understanding brought him the highest reward from his profession.

"A former country school teacher, Walter W. Head, born in a farm hamlet in Western Illinois, was elected president of the association in 1923. He gave up teaching and a salary of $75 to enter banking at $40 a month in a small Missouri town. He subsequently became president of a bank in Omaha, the largest in Nebraska and a dozen neighboring states. The position he occupied in advancing agricultural welfare during the period of depression led to his being called the 'Granger President of the American Bankers Association.'

"From Irish immigrant lad to supreme head of banking in America epitomizes the career of William E. Knox, president of one of the largest savings banks of the country in New York. His business career began as an office boy in a publishing house, and he later entered the bank as a clerk. Experience with humble people in their problems of personal finance and his inculcation of economy in all matters attracted country-wide attention.

"Oscar Wells, who rises in 1925 as successor of these men, was born in an old weather-boarded log cabin house in the Missouri River bottoms of Platte County, Missouri. He became an orphan when three years of age, losing his parents in an epidemic that ravaged the countryside. He passed under the care of an uncle, head of a small country bank in Platte City, a town of a few hundred inhabitants, growing up on a farm and receiving his early education in a rural school. He later entered Bethany College, West Virginia, but at the end of his junior year he had to quit college and go to work in the bank."

His subsequent career was one of steady progress, first to higher positions among small country banks, then to larger city banks in Texas, where he rose to the top. In 1914 he was chosen first governor of the Dallas Federal Reserve Bank and served through the opening period of the establishment of that institution. He resigned to become president of a bank in Birmingham, Alabama, which has grown under his administration to be one of the largest and most successful institutions in the South.

HUGE GROWTH IN SCHOOL SAVINGS

New York.—School savings in the United States for the year 1924-1925 increased in aggregate bank balances by $5,500,000, with a growth of 630,000 in the total number of pupils participating. It is shown in reports made to the American Bankers Association, which declares that the returns encourage belief in the permanence of school savings as a part of the educational program in the public schools.

During the year the number of reporting school savings systems increased from 683 in 742 districts to 760 in 1,557 districts, the number of schools from 9,080 to 10,163, the number of pupils participating from 2,236,326 to 2,869,497, the deposits from $14,991,535.40 to $16,961,560.72 and the bank balances from $20,435,144.64 to $25,913,431.15, says W. E. Albright, in charge of the Association's savings activities.

Since 1920, the first year for which comprehensive statistics are available, the number of schools having school savings banking has increased 271.4 per cent, the enrollment in school savings districts 278.9 per cent, participants 529.2 per cent, deposits 506.1 per cent and bank balances 516.8 per cent.

"Red Tape" Carried to Extremes in Europe

The palace of justice in Paris, a portion of which will be set aside shortly as a museum of relics from the Revolution, has a curious old custom. Every night one of the main doors is left ajar in obedience to an order of March, 1818, when Louis XIII provided that it should remain open perpetually, "so that my subjects may be able to seek justice at all hours of the day and night." Through revolution, empire, kingdom and two republics this order has been scrupulously carried out. But the meaning of the custom seems almost forgotten. "The Man With the Iron Mask," the pen name of a reporter of a Parisian daily, presented himself at the door in the small hours of the night for admittance. He was promptly thrown out by the watchman and told to clear off if he did not want to enter by the prisoner's gate in the morning. In Petrograd they had a similar incident in czarist days. The Empress Elizabeth once saw a fine flower in her garden. As she was on the way to a court function she had no time to pick it, but ordered a soldier to stand guard over it. The empress forgot about the flower, but three centuries later there was still a sentinel placed regularly each hour of the night and day at the spot where the flower had been.—Pierre Van Paassen, in the Aalanta Constitution.

Earth's Music Wasted on Prehistoric Man?

Prehistoric man, who slew the megatherium, didn't call it that. More like, he designated it as the "Oont," or something brief and resounding. One syllable was good enough for him. He undoubtedly knew no other than one-syllable speech.

Notwithstanding his own meager contributions to the music on earth, primitive man must have heard and weighed some. The birds sang in the bowers as sweetly as they do now. What impression did that nightingale make on his small and fuzzy ear? Did the melodious notes touch his rudimentary soul, or did he merely want to eat the nightingale?

The more often we speculate on the first men, the greater sympathy we feel for them. We should be greatly interested in one of them if he were in existence now. As it is, we have to be content with studying some backward races still here.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Violin Strings for Cure

For more than a century the story has been revived at times in England that the ailment of lumbago would flee from the human body if the individual would wind a violin string loosely about the body and wear it for a few months.

The D, A and E strings are favored as having that curative power, and recently when a few cases of lumbago developed among members of the London Stock Exchange there was a very real run on the music stores, the demand for these violin strings taking nearly all the strings on hand. Fancy prices were demanded and received for pure Italian gut strings, particularly the E string, that was said to have a very marked power over human suffering.

Hard and Soft Solders

Soldering operations are classified, according to the composition of the alloy used, as either soft soldering or hard soldering. Solders of low melting points, composed mainly of lead and tin in varying amounts, are known as soft solders, while those of high melting points, composed of varying amounts of copper, brass, zinc, silver and gold, are known as hard solders. The soft solder commonly used is made up of half lead and half tin, and melts at a temperature of 370 degrees Fahrenheit. The more lead there is in this alloy, the higher is its melting point, and an alloy composed of one part tin and two parts lead melts at 441 degrees Fahrenheit.

And That Was That

A famous London comedian who need not be named was invited to a peer's house during the festive season. After dinner he was reciting a few of his best yarns and in the midst of one of the choicest was interrupted by a guest, who said to him: "Excuse me, but your handkerchief is hanging half out of your pocket."

"Thank you very much," said the actor gravely, as he adjusted it. "You know the company so much better than I."—Sporting and Dramatic News.

No Appeal

A journalist, his wife and child, little Alice, were having lunch together. "Can I have some more pudding, mother?" inquired the child. "I think you have had enough," said the journalist; "it will make you ill." His wife, as is the way of mothers, said, "Let her have a little more." "It will make her ill," insisted father. Little Alice looked from one to the other. Finally she sighed and said, "The editor's decision is final."

With Reservations

A parson's little daughter came home from school in great concern. "Isn't devil a horrible word to be in the Bible, daddy?" she said. "It was in my portion this afternoon, but I coughed when I came to it and wouldn't read it." This reminds one of the curate who rendered a well-known passage: "He that believeth not shall be damned, as it were."

PATHOS AND COMEDY
IN CHAPLIN FILM

In "The Gold Rush," called Charlie Chaplin's greatest comedy, coming to the State Theatre next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, under a United Artists Corporation release, the world's most famous comedian is seen as a pathetic tenderfoot struggling along with hundreds of others who are in search of gold in the Klondike.

Poetic pathos and whimsical comedy are cleverly blended in this film. There is one scene in which Charlie, a bedraggled bit of humanity, finds a sympathizer and sweetheart—a girl in a dance hall. She dances with the little tramp, who beams over her shoulder into the eyes of his rival, a wealthy miner.

There is Jim McKay, a giant as strong as an ox. McKay is enraged and Charlie trembles as the big man menaces him. The little man thinks after all that death is better than the loss of the queen of the dance hall.

To have the right types in Truckee, in Northern California, where many scenes of this picture were produced, Chaplin took out a special trainload of hoboes with well seared countenances and tattered clothes.

In several sequences it seems an endless line of ragged humanity that is crossing the Chilkoot Pass. A blizzard rages and men are blown about helplessly. They fight on doggedly, as this winding path cut through the snows over a precipitous mountainside is the gateway to their goal, the Klondike.

Then in another stretch there is Black Larson, who lives in terror of the police. He builds a hut in the Alaska mountains and lives as a hermit amid the snow and ice. To this hut comes the pathetic Chaplin. He knocks at the door for a rest before plodding along to the land of gold. Larsen does not care who starves, as he is not going to take any chances of the police apprehending him.

The scenes aboard a big steamship are full of human interest. The luxury and comfort of the first cabin are contrasted with the misery, want and sickness in the steerage. There is the little man, who a few years before went on the long hike to the Klondike, and who now aboard the great vessel is seen wrapped in costly furs. He is unhappy because he has lost his girl. But in the steerage there is a girl returning home from Alaska, wishing she could find her dear little tramp again.

CHURCH CHIMES ARE HEARD
TWO THOUSAND MILES AWAY

Even by the wildest stretches of imagination, Father Junipera Serra, who founded the Del Toso Mission in San Luis Obispo in the year 1772, would never have considered the possibility of the chimes of that Mission being heard 2,000 miles away. In fact, even the most credulous of today would be wont to believe that the bells pealing in San Luis Obispo could be heard in Chicago.

However, according to J. F. Adams, manager of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company at Burlingame, this recently happened. A guest, staying in one of the leading hotels in San Luis Obispo, was talking to Chicago by long distance telephone service and during the conversation the chimes of the Mission nearby began to peal.

As the sound interfered with the conversation, the guest asked to be excused for a moment to close the window. The Chicago party, hearing the chimes, requested that the window be left open as he enjoyed hearing them and marveled that they could be heard at such a great distance.

FREAK AUTOMOBILE IS GOING OR COMING?

PAY ATTENTION TO CAR BRAKES

Failure to Hold Is Due Mostly to Neglect of Owner, Says Hayes.

Motorists who do not enjoy the latest improvements in brakes are missing a good opportunity and overlooking safety by not making a greater effort to get the most from their present brakes is the opinion of Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club.

During this period of transition in brakes, he says, there is an unnecessary tendency toward a double standard of stopping, which can be prevented by getting more out of the brakes on older cars and refraining from using the newer brakes excessively.

"In considering the details of so-called 'brake failure' as a cause of accidents," Hayes explains, "the American Automobile association, found most brake systems were not giving more than 75 per cent of their full efficiency by reason of owner neglect.

Both Kinds Neglected.

"As applied to four-wheel brakes as well as the two-wheel variety. One of the chief reasons for this low efficiency of so important a unit of the car is the failure of the average driver to take advantage of what is known as the wrapping action of the brake bands.

"When bands are of uniform clearance all the way round every square inch of lining comes into contact with the brake drum simultaneously. This causes the band to follow the drum, or to wrap around it. Brake effectiveness is greatly increased, and the car stops with far less effort on the part of the driver.

"Most car owners consider clearance uniformly, as simply a detail which provides for even wear of the linings. Rather than take the trouble to adjust the bands carefully they allow excessive clearance all around, which means that in wet weather the brakes may get water-clogged.

Equality Is Important.

"Equality of adjustment is an even more important feature. Two brakes, evenly adjusted, are safer in the long run than just one brake that makes the car stand on end. Experience demonstrates brakes are used during wet weather, and it follows if the brakes are not of equal adjustment under such conditions there is no advantage in having one good brake. The 100 per cent brake may reduce the resultant braking efficiency to nil, and cause a skid.

"Comparatively few car owners appreciate the effect of the weather and the elements on the brakes. In damp weather linings will be much more effective than in dry weather, yet few owners will remember to wash the brakes when there is very little natural dampness.

"If it tends to work out on the right brake band of the rear wheel during hot weather the simplest remedy is to drive up on the crown of the road instead of allowing the axle to tip to the right so constantly.

Keep Carburetor Clean

The only attention necessary to the carburetor is keeping it clean. There is a drain pocket at the bottom of most of the carburetors which should be cleaned out once in a while by opening the little cock or taking the plug out at the bottom. Shut off the gasoline, remove the float and wipe the deposits out of the float chamber. No adjusting need be done to the carburetor after it has once been set.

Useful Screw Driver

The ordinary screw driver is not adapted to all classes of work. By making a heavy screw driver with the center portion in the form of a heavy square of metal a socket wrench may be placed on the tool so that all the leverage necessary may be obtained.

Poor Brakes a Menace

Inefficient brakes were the cause of 75 per cent of the $70,000 automobile accidents in the United States last year, according to reports reaching the public safety department of the Auto-

Conservation of Tires Requires Extra Caution

Conservation of tires, urged by Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover and endorsed by the American Automobile association, must be accompanied by extra caution in driving if the motorist expects to benefit by his plan of lowering rubber prices by saving rubber, according to Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club.

"There would be no gain if motorists failed to recognize the importance of driving with increased care when getting the last few miles out of old tires," declares Mr. Hayes. "There would be only disaster through front-wheel blowouts and skidding."

This is believed to be the first suggestion to automobile owners in general, to temper their economy program with common sense.

"A new tire is a safety device," Mr. Hayes adds. "Its strong carcass is a symbol of security. With it the driver is justified in running at higher car speeds in the country and in operating his car at normal traveling speeds over rough roads where excessive strains are placed on tires.

"The rough treads of a new tire save skids, provide better traction and assist in stopping. A driver need not consider himself at a disadvantage with old tires, however, provided he is provident enough to make his driving conform to his rubber.

"We cannot afford to stretch safety while stretching rubber. Something will snap unless common sense and caution are abundant enough to provide the necessary element of compensation."

Hood Should Be Removed During Warmer Spells

Don't forget to remove the cover from the front of the radiator when there is a thaw or the weather gets mild for a few days after being quite cold. When the temperature is away down it is of course very wise to partially—if not fully—cover the front of the radiator to prevent the bitter cold from getting the engine too cold for proper operation.

But having adjusted matters for such days, remember that when the warmer spells arrive the shutting out of the air may be too complete, and you will cause the power plant to overheat, often with serious results. The point is that the car driver must use discretion in controlling the radiator's cooling, and on the days when he feels warm he should not expect the engine to take a different view of the matter.

Handy Piece of Canvas

Few car owners realize what a convenient accessory is a little square of canvas, about eighteen inches over all. It saves trousers when you have to kneel to get at some inaccessible part. It keeps the jack from slipping on snow or ice. It keeps the inner tube out of the dust when this part is being inserted by the roadside. It will serve to strain gasoline through; it will keep tools from rattling; it will protect the hand in handling hot parts.

Harden Cast Iron Parts

At times it is desirable to harden medium or small cast iron parts. Here's how: Take a half pint of sulphuric acid, two quarts of common salt, one-half pound of saltpeter, two pounds of alum, a quarter-pound of prussiate of potash, quarter-pound of cyanide of potash and dissolve in ten gallons of soft water. Heat the iron to a cherry red and dip in the solution. If the parts are wanted very hard repeated heating and dipping will be necessary.

Handy Riveting Stake

A piece of one-inch round stock, heated and bent in the shape of the letter P, with the final loop not quite completed, makes an admirable bench vise riveting stake. This stake is handy in many riveting and bending jobs around the home garage, relining brake bands, bending pipe over, etc.

His Wife's Tongue Made Him a Pirate

IN THE early part of the Eighteenth century there lived on the island of Barbados a retired British army officer named Maj. Stede Bonnet. A man of good birth, education and some wealth, he was highly respected by his neighbors and there apparently was no reason whatever for his action when, in the spring of 1717, he decided to become a pirate. But history, that industrious gossip, says there was a reason and that reason was Dame Bonnet. She, so it is said, had a tongue which would have made Xantippe stand silent in awe. So between piracy and petulance, the major chose piracy.

He purchased a swift schooner, which he named the Revenge, and set forth upon what was supposed to be a trading voyage. A few days out from port, he hoisted the black flag and announced to his crew that they were to be pirates.

From the Carolinas to Massachusetts the new pirate leader murdered and robbed and he is one of the few pirates who is known to have forced his captives to walk the plank. On one occasion he fell in with the pirate Blackbeard, who noticed that Bonnet was only an amateur pirate and humiliated him by depriving him of his command and making him a clerk.

Soon afterwards while Blackbeard was absent Bonnet went to Gov. Eden of North Carolina, surrendered and received a pardon. Then he announced that he was going to get a commission as a privateer and ravage the French and Spanish shipping in the West Indies. He got a crew by going to the island where Blackbeard had marooned some of his men, took them off and told them that he was going to seek out Blackbeard and have revenge. He failed to find the famous pirate, so he sailed away to the North.

On this cruise he changed the name of his vessel to the Royal James—a doubtful compliment to the Young Pretender—and himself took the name of Captain Thomas. After looting a number of vessels off the Middle Atlantic coast Bonnet again turned south, only to find that the Carolinas were aroused against him. A prominent citizen of South Carolina named William Rhett led an expedition in two ships against the pirate leader and after one of the bloodiest battles ever fought between pirates and the forces of the law, Rhett captured Bonnet and took him to Charles Town to be tried. Bonnet made the most abject, cowardly plea for mercy, but he was found guilty and sentenced to be hanged. He managed to escape from prison but was again captured on Sullivan's Island by Rhett. He died in Execution dock, Nov. 24, 1718.

A Plaything of Fate

FATE must have been in a playful mood when Captain Greaves was born. Fate drove him into piracy, but could not make him fit into the picture of the regulation type of pirate, for he was too kind of heart. Fate condemned him to a pirate's death, then saved him by a miracle.

He was the son of a slave in Barbados, one of the thousands of Scotch and Irish who were sent there by Cromwell during the Civil war in England. Because of their bare knees, these slaves were called Red Legs and Captain Greaves is often spoken of as "alias Red Legs." His master was kind and gave him a good education. When this master died the boy was sold to another—a cruel one.

He immediately ran away, swam across Carlisle bay, but unfortunately climbed upon the wrong ship and found himself in the clutches of Captain Hawkins, a notoriously cruel pirate. So Greaves unwillingly became a pirate and quickly rose to eminence in the profession, although he was remarkable for his refusal to torture prisoners or kill unnecessarily. This led to a duel between him and Captain Hawkins, in which he was victorious, and was elected captain.

He now entered upon a career of almost unparalleled success as a pirate, culminating in his capture of the island of Margarita, off the coast of Venezuela. He did this by capturing the Spanish fleet, turning the guns of the fleet upon the forts defending the principal city and then storming them. From this town he obtained a huge booty of pearls and gold.

Red Legs then retired to the life of a respectable planter on the island of Nevis. One day he was visited by an old pirate friend, who denounced him to the authorities. He was thrown into a dungeon to await execution. In 1680 there came a great earthquake, which destroyed and submerged the town and Greaves was one of the few survivors. He was picked up by a whaling vessel, on which he soon won the praise of the captain by his skill as a seaman. More than that, a queer turn of fate won him even greater honor by his assistance in capturing a gang of pirates, and for this feat he was given a pardon.

Then he retired once more to his plantation, and there he lived out the remaining years of his life, greatly honored for his many acts of piracy and

OFFERS GOOD SUGGESTION

Standardization and unification of traffic regulations throughout the United States, in order to reduce accidents and aid in law enforcement, was the program discussed by the second national conference on street and highway safety, recently held at Washington under the auspices of Secretary Hoover.

The committee on statistics showed that in 1924 there were 23,000 deaths and nearly 600,000 serious personal injuries, as the result of street and highway accidents. Automobile traffic was involved in at least 85 per cent of the accidents.

The large number of automobile accidents reported furnishes the background for the continued agitation, in political circles, for compulsory automobile liability insurance, usually under a state fund—in plain English, state automobile liability insurance.

It is a grave question whether compulsory automobile liability insurance, either with private companies or at the hands of the state, would reduce automobile accidents. It would seem that the natural result would be for careless people to become more careless, with resulting increase in accidents.

Inasmuch as accident prevention is the end sought, rather than the writing of insurance, it has been suggested that our law-making bodies take a leaf from the old Swiss laws—that the person responsible for the accident should be assessed something as a punitive example. In other words, if the law provided that 20 per cent of the verdict, with a maximum of $200 for personal damages and $50 for property damages, should be paid by the owner of the car which caused the accident (in case it was insured), there would probably result an immediate decrease in accidents. But simply requiring wholesale insurance, either with private companies or the state, would not reduce accidents.

NO TOWN NEWSPAPERS

Think of a city of 50,000 people with no newspaper! Frank P. Glass, veteran American newspaper man, who has recently completed a tour of the world, found such a city, not in an uncivilized country, but in France.

Excepting in the largest cities, according to Mr. Glass, newspapers in France are few and far between, and there are practically no small town newspapers, such as we have in America.

In some of the towns men go about the streets calling out the news gleaned from the city newspapers, often several days old. Yet the newspapers of Paris have enormous circulations, that of LaPetit Journal reaching over a million, probably the largest in the world.

But for the great mass of the people of France there is no such thing as the publication of local news. Only the most prominent people and the most notorious criminals ever get their names into the newspapers.

Quite a contrast with this country, where the news of every rural community is welcomed by home town editors and gladly published for the benefit of their readers.

ONLY A STRAY PUP

What does a stray pup amount to, anyway? What does it matter if such a helpless animal is abused and tortured to make sport for a gang of thoughtless boys? Who cares?

One small boy cared—and because he cared he made a friend—a friend who didn't forget.

Some years ago a kindly man named Jacob Siler walked along the bank of the Mississippi river near St. Louis and came upon a group of boys who were amusing themselves by throwing a stray pup into the river time after time, in spite of the protest of one small companion. Finally the pup's defender engaged the others in fist combat to save the wretched animal from drowning. He battled so courageously that he won the day and saved the pup.

Mr. Siler commended the boy, whose name was Otto Schmidt, and between the two a life-long friendship sprang up. Recently Siler died and left $7,500 to the boy, now a man, whose humane instincts and courage rescued the poor dog and thereby won the admiration of the casual passerby.

Those who befriend unfortunate animals do not always obtain material rewards such as came to Otto Schmidt, but they inevitably have the reward of an approving conscience, which is greater still.

HOW MUCH SHALL I GIVE TO CHARITY?

At last some one has figured out a way to know how much one should give to organized charity. The San Francisco Community Chest, which supports the organized charities of the city, has evolved the following rule: "Square the amount of the number of thousand dollars you earn per year, and write a check for that sum payable to the Community Chest. Then your conscience can rest at ease until the next year."

It isn't so hard as it sounds. It hits each citizen for just about what his checkbook can stand. The janitor who makes only a thousand a year gives only a dollar, if we remember our geometry at all. If the janitor didn't study geometry, the boss can help him multiply one by one and the janitor can give the dollar. That's the noble feature of this San Francisco scheme. Everybody gives something. Bill, who makes $3,000 a year, gives $9. The $10,000 a year executive gives $100, and the rich man with the $50,000 a year income makes his check out for $2,500. If he wants to give more, that is his little worry.

The fact that the San Francisco Community Chest raised more than $2,000,000 in ten days by this system should make it of more than passing interest to the citizens of other cities faced with the same problem.—Sunset Magazine.

REPORT INDICATES WORTH OF COUNTY TRAFFIC SQUAD

Among more than 20,000 motorists stopped by traffic officers during the past month in California, San Mateo county registers 247, with 162 arrests for speeding and other violations. The total of arrests for the state were 5,315.

San Mateo county traffic officers, in addition to stopping 247 motorists, rode a total of 12,395 miles in their patrol of highways. Fines for their arrests totaled $450 it was revealed in a report made public by Will H. Marsh, chief of the state division of motor vehicles.

A drive conducted in San Francisco during the month by a division inspector and four local traffic men resulted in the discovery that 3,000 chauffeurs were operating in that city without a license. They paid $2 each for the privilege of remaining at work. The traffic officers rode 340,453 miles during the month.

The largest number of motorists stopped, 1,942, is credited to the Imperial county squad, while Kern county men were second with 1,698. Alameda county officers led in arrests with 897. San Diego county judges showed the least disposition to be lenient, the total fines there being $3,749.

TWO PETTING PARTY BANDITS CAPTURED

Two alleged "petting party bandits" who have operated in San Mateo county for the past three months, after holding up two parties on the Skyline boulevard early Sunday, were arrested. The suspected bandits, Alvin Fields and Lloyd MacBride, were employed as night watchmen in a San Francisco garage, who nightly picked out the fastest car in the garage and turned bandits. It is claimed they have robbed a number of people on the Skyline boulevard, and search had been made for them for some time.

RECOVERS LOOT TAKEN BY WOODSIDE BURGLARS

A burglary was committed on March 26, at the Gallagher and Dr. Weeks homes in Woodside, when valuable radios, kodaks, and other valuables were taken. Sheriff T. C. McGovern has since been on the lookout for the thieves, and in his search a few days located a part of the loot at 1372 Pine street, San Francisco, an apartment house. It developed that the stolen property had been left in the room by two boys, who had since disappeared. It is expected that these boys will soon be located and brought back for trial.

PLAN TO ESTABLISH AIRPORT

The project to establish San Francisco's half million dollar airport near South San Francisco was threatened in a hearing Tuesday before the finance committee of the San Francisco board of supervisors, when it was stated that a corporation stands ready to establish a $350,000 airplane factory in San Francisco and more than forty persons contemplate the purchase of planes provided an airport is established inside the city limits. The supervisors were asked to appropriate $500,000 for the port, in a plea by Capen A. Fleming, director of the industrial department of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

The Reach of the Spoken Word

WHEN the small family group of primitive man expanded into the cave community, a means of communicating beyond the normal range of the voice became imperative. Then someone discovered that by making a speaking-trumpet of his hands, he could increase the reach of the spoken word, could add new effectiveness to the human voice.

Other means of transmitting intelligence, in their turn, were found to serve the needs of man: the signal drum and the beacon fire; the written message, carried by runner, by rider, by water or by rail; and finally, the telegraph.

But these messages, however carried, lacked the direct and personal qualities of conversation. They were but symbols of speech, the shadows of the spoken word.

Then, fifty years ago, came the telephone. A half-century of scientific research has extended the reach of man's voice to thousands of miles. The Bell System's vast network of lines provides a service nationwide in scope. The American continent today is no larger, from a communication standpoint, than was the prehistoric community in which the cavemen shouted from cliff to cliff.

Bennie Haubrich, of Mission street, spent several days with his cousins, Roberta and Paul Silva, of Palo Alto.

A large crowd attended the opening picnic at Lovchen Gardens last Sunday. The affair was sponsored by the Marconi Nest.

Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Haubrich have purchased a handsome new Jordan Straight Eight sedan from Chase Morrill Company in San Francisco.

Elsie Fahey, Florence McKendrick, Sylvia Fischer, Thelma Selmi, Laura Figone and Sarah Battaini made a trip to Oakland last Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Clervi and family wish to thank their many local friends for the beautiful floral offerings and sympathy extended to them in their sad bereavement.

A baseball game was played between the Jefferson grammar school and the Woodrow Wilson school last Friday. Seven innings were played and ended in a tie score of 11 to 11.

The Pollyanna Club held a most successful candy sale last Saturday at Matt's Market. The supply of candy, which was delicious and made by the girls, was not equal to the demand, and they were soon sold out.

Don't fail to attend the big whist party and dance to be given by the officers of El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, Native Daughters of the Golden West, under the direction of President Margaret McDonald, in Masonic Hall, Daly City, on Wednesday evening, May 5.

Many of the members of the Colma Athletic Club are meeting at the Colma Community Center on Wednesday evenings. They are planning to construct an outdoor basketball court on the grounds. They have purchased handsome swimming suits and enjoy many outings.

The Girls' Club of Colma have had the windows of the Community Center building on Dunk street covered with netting, making it suitable for gymnasium purposes, and are making fine progress in their gymnastic studies under Miss Goddman of San Francisco. Their class meets each Thursday evening at the Center.

This Friday evening a joint meeting of all San Francisco Parlor of Native Daughters of the Golden West will be held in Native Sons Hall, San Francisco. El Carmelo Parlor No. 181 will initiate six new candidates on this occasion, and many local members plan to be present. Grand President Sue J. Irwin will preside on this occasion.

The tragic death of little Marie Clervi, idolized daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Clervi (Josephine Armanino) of San Francisco, brought great sorrow to local people and to her aunts and uncles. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Nava and Mr. and Mrs. John Degliantoni, of Colma. Marie was just 6 years old. She was struck by a machine in Golden Gate Park last Sunday while spending the day there with her parents. She was a beautiful child and loved by all who knew her. The sadly bereaved parents have the sincere sympathy of their many local friends in their great sorrow. The funeral was held on Tuesday at 2:30 from the parlors of Valente Marini, Perata, on Green street, thence to Holy Angels church on San Pedro avenue for blessing. The floral offerings were numerous and beautiful.

Edith L. Hassett, assisted by Misses Eleanor Brown, Eugenia Cagliardi and Henrietta Engel of the General Pershing school, held a delightful entertainment in Ryan's hall last Friday evening. District Superintendent W. J. Savage was chairman of the evening and made a most pleasing and suitable address, as did Roy W. Cloud. The building was filled to capacity. There was delightful entertainment by the children, followed by dancing and delicious refreshments.

The picnic sponsored by the Colma Volunteer Fire Department at Rockaway Beach last Sunday was a great success. Nearly everyone in Colma motored to the beach and enjoyed the day. The weather was perfect, and everyone hopes that there will soon be another of these enjoyable affairs, and there probably will be before the summer is over. Baseball, swimming, racing and dancing were enjoyed by the large crowd throughout the day. A five piece orchestra provided the excellent dance music at Rockaway Inn. The committee in charge of the affair deserves much credit for its success.

NOVEL ROMANCE SHOWN IN FILM

There is an unusual and appealing romance in "The Beautiful City," to be presented at the State Theatre next Monday and Tuesday. It is the love of an Italian boy, Tony, played by the star, Richard Barthelmess, for Mollie, an Irish colleen, portrayed by Dorothy Gish.

They are deeply in love, but marriage is out of the question until Tony is able to earn more money, the income from his flower push-cart being too small to support a wife. At night they sit out on the fire escape of the tenement in which they live, planning for the big day when Tony owns a flower shop of his own and they are able to furnish a two-room apartment.

Their dreams are suddenly shattered when Tony is accused of a crime, although innocent, and, for his mother's sake, is compelled to take the blame, knowing that his brother is guilty. After his release he attempts to take up the thread of life, but again he is the victim of circumstances, and he goes through many heart-breaking experiences before he and Mollie are able to fulfill their dreams.

GASOLINE TAX INITIATIVE PETITION TO BE CIRCULATED

Circulation of the petition to put the initiative measure providing for a one cent increase in the gasoline tax for new state highway construction on the ballot at the November election will begin next week, according to an announcement made by the California State Automobile Association and the County Supervisors' Association of California. These two organizations are working shoulder to shoulder in the campaign to secure adequate financing of California's highway program.

A circulating title for the petition will be issued by Attorney General U. S. Webb and the petitions will be printed immediately following the issuance of the title. The campaign to secure the 83,000 signatures necessary to place the measure on the ballot will then be undertaken.

A poll of the county boards of supervisors conducted by President Heyer of the Supervisors' Association shows that forty counties—more than two-thirds of the total—have approved the proposed initiative measure which it is estimated will total $123,000,000 for new state highway construction over a period of twelve years. Only six counties have raised objections to the measure, while an even dozen counties have not yet announced their official action on the proposal.

PLAN CONCERTS FOR THE SUMMER MONTHS

Sunday afternoon symphony concerts, featuring some of the finest musicians in America, are to be held during the summer months in San Mateo, Burlingame and Hillsborough, according to plans announced a few days ago. The proposal to be presented to service clubs and chambers of commerce of San Mateo and Burlingame, provides for a series of ten concerts to be held in a natural outdoor amphitheatre near the Hillsborough city hall. The series of concerts are to be financed by the sale of tickets at 50 cents and $1 following a plan recently proposed in San Francisco to popularize the symphony program.

C. E. Robinson, a negro of Little Rock, Arkansas, had ten sons and seven grandsons in the United States army during the World war, which gives his family the distinction of having contributed more man-power to the cause than any other on record. In spite of his color, Robinson should rank well with some of our boasted 100 percenters.

Farm Radio Making Rapid Growth—There Are Nearly 1,000,000 Radio Sets on Farms in the United States.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

There are nearly 1,000,000 radio sets on farms in the United States, the Department of Agriculture estimates in a report on the growth of farm radio during the past five years.

In some states, the department says, there are radio sets on 25 to 40 per cent of all farms. Estimates made by the department in 1923 showed 145,000 sets in use on farms at that time; 365,000 sets in 1924, and 553,000 sets early in 1925.

Increased power and improved broadcasting, together with better receiving sets, the department believes, "will do much to aid in establishing the permanency of the use of radio for the benefit of agriculture."

"One station alone in a period of three months' broadcasting of market and weather reports, received more than 3,000 letters of commendation from farmers, country banks, shippers of live stock, and small merchants in the towns in 12 agricultural states surrounding the station."

Interference among stations may gradually be eliminated, the department believes, as many of the less active stations are being discontinued, and technical improvements are being made in both broadcasting and receiving equipment. Of 1,458 radio stations of all sizes licensed to broadcast since broadcasting began, only 536 were active on January 1 this year.

Co-Operative Arrangements.

The department has made co-operative arrangements with more than 100 stations for broadcasting official market news gathered by department representatives in leading shipping and consuming areas. Since the first of the year the department has made arrangements with about 60 stations to broadcast on a regular schedule four additional services dealing with general agricultural information.

Literally hundreds of stations have requested the privilege of handling the government reports, but many of the requests have had to be refused because the stations are remote from the department's market news branch offices.

"When the experimental radio market news service was announced on December 21, 1920," the report states, "those in the Department of Agriculture who were directing the new activity hardly anticipated the wonderful possibilities of radio broadcasting as we now know it. A laboratory transmitter at the United States bureau of standards on a 400-meter wave length, a few enthusiastic amateurs within a hundred miles of Washington, and a 5 p. m. schedule of about 500 words by radio telegraph, composing what was called the 'radio market-gram,' constituted the elements of the experiment."

"The practical results of this first experiment could hardly be called conclusive, but they gave encouragement to those in charge of it to push on in the quest of more and more evidence. On April 7, 1921, an announcement was made that arrangements had been completed with the air-mail radio service of the Post-Office department to transmit by 'wireless' market reports several times a day from post-office stations at Washington, D. C., Bellefonte, Pa., St. Louis, Mo., and Omaha, Neb."

Amateurs Were Enlisted.

"Assuming an effective radius of audibility of 300 miles about each station, licensed amateurs in the areas covered were enlisted to copy the reports and to furnish them to shippers' associations, county agents, state bureau of markets, farm bureaus and other agricultural agencies, banks, newspapers and local telephone exchanges. A number of licensed operators offered to copy the reports. By January 1, 1922, the market reports were being relayed and broadcast by radio telegraph from seven post office stations in a chain across the country."

"During 1921, reports were furnished to three of the then very few radio telephone broadcasting stations. Since and bounds until now there is practically no agricultural community in the country that is without official market reports on agricultural commodities. Well-established schedules of weather, crop and market reports are broadcast from more than 100 stations in all parts of the country."

Farmers, of necessity, the department says, have bought mainly high-priced sets capable of getting distant stations. The average cost of radio sets on more than 1,000 farms widely scattered over the country in 1923 was estimated by the department at $175. Better and more easily operated equipment can be bought now for half this amount, the department says.

An authentic list of broadcasting stations the country over that broadcast market and crop reports has been prepared by the department for free distribution. Requests for the list should be mailed to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

FOREFATHERS OF RADIO

By GEORGE LEWIS
of The Crosley Radio Corporation.

Developments in radio transmission went ahead by leaps and bounds, but the reception of signals was hampered by the lack of proper means for detecting them. Many men worked upon this problem. J. A. Fleming, for instance, invented the "valve," which was the forerunner of the radio tube developed by DeForest in this country. But the detecting device which became most popular in the early days of radio was the crystal detector, as developed by Dinwoody and Picard and introduced in 1906. By means of the crystal detector the received electric current is so modified that it will operate a telephone receiver.

Up to this time there had been so few radio stations that there was little difficulty about the signals of more than one station being received at the same time and "interfering" with one another. However, such difficulties were anticipated by other factors which overcame them.

The length of waves sent out by the transmitting station depends upon certain constants of the apparatus, just as the length of a water wave depends upon the object which causes the disturbance in the water and is responsible for the waves. Thus a cork dropped into a pond will send out little, short, choppy waves, while if a big ocean liner overturns, the splash it makes will be followed by giant waves of great length. By adjusting certain parts of the transmitting apparatus the length of wave that it sends out may be controlled, and by adjusting similar parts of the receiving apparatus one may control the wavelength to which it will respond. This adjustment is called "tuning."

Thus, very early in the history of radio transmitting, stations near each other were tuned to different wavelengths, so that the operator of a receiving set could tune to any one of

THE AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

CHENEY'S RECORD LONG AND VARIED

Joseph Young Cheney of Orlando, Florida, public utility owner, manufacturer and "big league" business man has one hobby—the American Legion.

Mr. Cheney was elected national vice commander of the Legion at Omaha in 1925 because Legionnaires had watched him devote seven years of untiring efforts to his hobby in his home town, his state and in the nation.

"I know of no Legionnaire in the country who is more thoroughly and completely a Legionnaire than Joe Cheney," declared a high Legion official recently.

Cheney is one of Florida's busiest business men but he is perhaps the "goingest" Legionnaire in the nation. He has attended every state or national conference or convention of the Legion since the inception of the organization. He believes that men who served in the war together should get together as often as possible and at any Legion gathering of consequence he is among those present.

Mr. Cheney began his World war service early in 1917 as a cadet in the second officers' training school and received a commission as a second lieutenant. He was assigned to the Seventeenth Infantry. Later he was transferred to the One Hundred and Fifty-fourth depot brigade at Washington, D. C. He was discharged as a first lieutenant in January, 1919.

His Legion record is long and varied. He has served as post adjutant, vice commander and commander; as department adjutant, alternate national committeeman and in 1924 and 1925 as national committeeman. Then came his elevation in 1925 to national vice commander.

The fun and honor organization of the Legion, the Forty and Eight, is Joe Cheney's second hobby, if he has one. He is a past grand chief de gare, which translated means "the big chief" of the Forty and Eight of Florida.

Joe Cheney's wife doesn't call Joe on the carpet for putting in so much time on Legion affairs, for she has a hobby of her own—the American Legion Auxiliary. She is the president of the department of Florida of the Auxiliary.

Miller Heads Committee on Fidac Scholarships

Thomas W. Miller, member of the national executive committee of the American Legion from Delaware and president in 1925 of Fidac, interrelated veterans' federation, was recently appointed by President George Croftfield (Great Britain) as international chairman of the committee on Fidac scholarships.

The committee is engaged in working out plans for an interchange of students among the nine allied countries represented in Fidac. The international committee will be assisted by a national committee of fifteen in each country. The American committee will be appointed by National Commander John R. McQuigg in the near future.

Scholarships are being sought in standard colleges and universities in each of the nine countries. It is hoped that at least eight such scholarships will be established in every member country by the opening of school next fall. This will provide one scholarship for each of the other member countries. Scholarships will be awarded on the basis of an essay contest conducted by the associations in their respective countries.

Gift From Upper Egypt

From far-away Egypt on the Nile a gift of $50 for the American Legion endowment fund for disabled veterans and orphans of the World war reached national headquarters at Indianapolis recently. The gift was made by Lovisa A. Barnes, a missionary, formerly of Pasadena, Cal. "With best wishes for the Legion and their great work, and may God's blessing be upon them,"

There were few, if any, people they loved much better than they did Annette and Pine.

Annette's hair was very, very dark brown, almost black. But Pine's hair was lighter in color.

Pine's real name was Philip, but the children had always called him Pine. In school and by many boys he was called Phil, but the children who were expecting him to dinner always called him Pine.

It made him so much more their friend to have a name of their own for him.

Pine was the kind you really wanted for a friend. Once he was your friend he was always your friend.

Both Pine and Annette were wonderful children. It was not that they were so good that they weren't natural.

But they had such nice qualities. They were so generous and so willing to share what they had with everyone else.

In fact they never kept anything of their own very long for they were so ready and eager to share.

They were so generous and they were so loyal to their friends and they always wanted to do what they could for everyone.

They had the really wonderful qualities.

And they were great fun, too.

Well, you can imagine how nice it was to think that they were coming to dinner.

The children thought about it all the day before the one when they would come and all that next day until it was almost time for them to arrive.

There was going to be a fine dinner, too. At Annette's and Pine's house every one always got such gorgeous dinners and such fine suppers and such nice tea parties and all sorts of parties.

But the children had asked their mother for an especially nice dinner on account of their guests.

So they were going to have soup and biscuits and roast beef and lima beans and mashed potatoes.

They were going to have celery and home-made currant jelly and home-made pickles.

And they were going to have home-made ice cream and home-made cake.

Chocolate ice cream was the flavor the children had decided upon.

Afterwards they would have hard candies and they would play games.

Oh, it was such fun looking forward to seeing Annette and Pine again.

The children could hardly wait for them to arrive.

Every sound they heard for at least an hour before they were due made them rush to look out of the door or out of the window.

And then at last they came.

And how happy every one was.

The children just beamed with delight.

For Annette and Pine had come. And Annette and Pine were such great, great friends!

New Brand of Dog

A small boy, about five, came struggling along dragging a strange looking pup by a heavy chain.

"Well, well," exclaimed a kindly on-looker. "That must be a fine dog you have. What kind is he?"

"Yes, sir!" came the proud reply. "He's half brindle and half female."

About New Neighbors

The new neighbors were under discussion. Howard made it his business to go over and be the first in our family to get acquainted.

He brought home this information: "They're one that goes to school; he's John. Mary plays with dolls, and the babyest one is Betty Jane."

ASPARAGUS TIME

This favorite vegetable comes at the time when it is very welcome. As with all of the early summer vegetables, asparagus is rich in mineral salts and vitamins. Asparagus when bought in the market is expensive food and when cooked should be served with every drop of the liquid in which the vegetable was cooked. To pay twenty-five or thirty cents a bunch for asparagus and cook in it a quantity of water, pouring that, when the vegetable is cooked, down the kitchen sink, is criminally wasteful. It is waste not only of money but of food value. The properties which make the vegetable should be carefully preserved in the cooking. A good receptacle for cooking asparagus is an old-fashioned coffee pot; the bunch without cutting may be put down into the water, then covered tightly; the coarser parts will cook in the water, the tips will be steamed until tender. Use the liquor from the vegetable for a sauce, as it is rich in salts and vitamins. A double boiler may be used in place of a coffee pot, using the water bath for the cooking and cover with the top of the double boiler. Steamed asparagus is considered by far the best way to get all the good of the vegetable; lay it in a colander and steam over water.

Asparagus lends itself with its delicate flavor, most acceptably as a salad vegetable; combined with butter, eggs and cheese it is delicious as souffle, rabbit, or scalloped dish.

Peppers Stuffed With Asparagus.—Prepare four uniform sized green peppers for stuffing. Parboil and drain. Take one cupful of bread crumbs, one cupful of cooked asparagus, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one teaspoonful of lemon juice, one-half teaspoonful of salt, a few drops of mushroom catsup, mix well and fill the peppers. Bake, basting with a good soup stock. Serve garnished with stuffed olives.

Often the tough ends of the asparagus may be peeled and will serve as tender as the parts nearer the tips. When too tough, cook the tough portions, saving the liquid for sauce to serve with the steamed tender tips.

Sorrel Soup.—Take a pound of sorrel, three potatoes, a bunch of green onions, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, two eggs and salt to taste. Wash the sorrel and cut fine. Peel the potatoes, add the chopped onions, and two quarts of water to the sorrel. Simmer with the salt and sugar until tender. Remove from the fire, add the beaten eggs.

Easy and Good Desserts.

Milk, the best food suited to children, makes the best foundation for wholesome desserts, good for old as well as young and easy of digestion.

Baked Custard.—This custard may be varied by different flavors or seasoning so that even if often served it will not become monotonous.

Beat four eggs slightly, add one-half cupful of sugar and one quart of fresh milk. Cook in water in a hot oven. Add a pinch of salt and such seasoning as grated nutmeg, cinnamon or any desired flavoring extract. All egg mixtures should cook at a low temperature, so setting the custard in water and not allowing it to boil will keep the custard cooking at a lower temperature. To test when cooked, dip a knifeblade into the center of the custard; if it comes out clean the custard is done. Remove at once from the oven and hot water. Custard that is overcooked is watery and unattractive.

Caramel Custard.—Melt in a smooth omelet pan one-half cupful of sugar, add gradually four cupfuls of scalding hot water and stir until the caramel is dissolved. Beat five eggs, add one-half teaspoonful of salt, a teaspoonful of vanilla, strain into a mold rinsed in cold water. Bake as usual.

Ginger Custard.—Line buttered cups with small pieces of canton ginger, then pour in a thick custard, using four eggs to a pint of milk, one-third of a cupful of sugar, a pinch of salt and vanilla to flavor. Beat the eggs, add sugar, salt, and flavoring, strain into molds and set into hot water to bake until firm. Serve with a spoonful of canton ginger syrup and a little of the chopped ginger over the unmolded custard when cold.

The more eggs used in a custard the more nourishing the dessert; however one may prepare a very good custard using two eggs to a pint of milk. If baking is not convenient steam the custards in water over a low flame on the gas burner. Cover for a while, then watch carefully so as not to overcook.

Coconut Custard Pie.—Use two eggs to a pint of milk, adding sugar to sweeten—not as much as if the sweet coconut were not used, sprinkle with a half to whole cupful of grated coconut and bake as usual in one crust.

MRS. BASSETT ALWAYS TIRED

Now in Good Health by Using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lansing, Michigan.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound whenever I needed it. When I first used it I was so bad I could hardly walk across the room without crying. I was tired all the time. I think my trouble was coming on me for six months before I realized it. I read of your wonderful medicine in the paper, and my husband bought me a bottle, and after the first few doses I felt better, so kept on taking it until I was well and strong. I take it at times when I feel tired and it helps me. I will always have a good word for your medicine and tell anyone what good it has done me. I recommended it to my neighbor for her girl, who is sixteen years old, and it was just what she needed. She is feeling fine now, and goes to school every day."—Mrs. E. F. Do not continue to feel all run-down and half sick when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is sold by druggists everywhere. It is a root and herb medicine and has been used by women for over fifty years.

Mercy for Jim O'Connell Is Favored by Wrigley

Jimmy O'Connell, former New York Giants' outfielder, should be given another chance in organized baseball, in the opinion of William Wrigley, Jr., owner of the Chicago Cubs and Los Angeles Pacific Coast league clubs.

Wrigley said that O'Connell, who was outlawed from organized baseball as a result of the National league scandal of 1924, was the victim of circumstances and innocent of any wrongdoing.

O'Connell was the principal figure in the alleged attempted bribery of Heinie Sands, shortstop of the Philadelphia Nationals, during the critical series between the Phillies and the Giants. O'Connell asserted "Cozy" Dolan, coach of the Giants, had put him up to approaching Sands.

"The whole thing, in my opinion, was a rather crude practical joke on the part of Dolan," said Wrigley.

Two Pitching Stars Are Nearly 40 Years of Age

Walter Johnson of the Washington Americans and Grover Alexander of the Chicago Nationals, king pitchers in their respective major leagues, this year celebrate their thirty-ninth birthday anniversaries.

Johnson, who has been a member of the champions since 1907, was born in Humboldt, Kan., November 6, 1887. He came direct to Washington from the semipro ranks and has participated in 751 major league games, having scored 394 victories. He was the third best American league pitcher last year in point of effectiveness and holds the strikeout record with a total of 3,324.

Alexander, a native of St. Paul, Neb., made his first major league appearance with the Phillies in 1911 and was obtained by his present club, the Cubs, in 1918. He has pitched in 564 contests, of which he has won 315. Alexander was born February 26, 1887.

He Needed the Clothes

At the age of seventeen Roger Bresnahan, the catcher whom John McGraw picked for his all-time all-American team, began his career in major league baseball as a pitcher for the Washington club in 1897. In his first game a Washington banker promised him a $50 suit if he would win the game. He did, 3 to 0. After finishing that season he refused to go back and didn't enter big league baseball again until 1901.

Gene Tunney and his manager, Billy Gibson, have signed with Tex Rickard a contract under the terms of which the ex-marine must fight any opponent selected for him by the big promoter within the next year and cannot fight any one at all without the sanction of Rickard. A Tunney-Wills battle seemed the most likely product of the contract.

The Toledo Blade says its baseball hope is already half way up the pennant pole. The trouble is the Mud Hens have been leaving it at half mast.

A "university" of baseball is being planned at Stockton, Cal. Players will be trained for advancement in the game as well as in a business education.

Lloyd A. Brown, Brooklyn National league left-handed pitcher, has been released to the Memphis Southern association club, under an optional agreement.

Joseph Dunn, former Brooklyn National league catcher, and pilot of the Evansville team in the Three-I league last year, has been made manager of the Elmira club of the New York-Pennsylvania league.

Leslie McCullough, who was recently purchased by Newark from Bloomington in the Three-I league, has been sent on option to York, Frank Dessau's team, in the New York-Pennsylvania league.

A. W. Elliott, field captain and leading shortstop in the New York-Pennsylvania league, with York last season, has been sold outright by the Newark club to the Scranton club in the New York-Pennsylvania league.

PENNOCK IS SLIM BUT HAS STRENGTH

Slenderness of the Yankee Southpaw Belies Power.

In that 15-inning shut-out that he pitched against the Athletics last July, Herbert Pennock of the Yankees lost eight pounds. When Pennock is in flesh, and that isn't during the pitching season, he weighs about 158 pounds—and this really brilliant southpaw is six feet tall. He is as slender as a reed and as tough as hickory, a real wonder for skill, durability and capacity for work.

You'll hear people sympathizing with Pennock about his being overworked by Miller Huggins and all that, as if Huggins didn't know his capacity better than anyone else. A lot of people think they know more about running a ball club than does Huggins, but they don't.

Pennock can stand a lot of work. His whole career tells that. He started in the big league in 1912, and here he is 13 years later, as good as ever and with the best season he ever had only a year behind him. He came back quickly from that 15-inning game—a shut-out, mind you—and games of that length or over are a strain on a pitcher to which none, no matter how rugged, should ever be subjected. Twelve innings are enough to allow any pitcher to go. Nearly always the after effects of the abnormally long games are bad, and long to get over.

Pennock is of wiry toughness. He has slim arms, slim legs, is below weight. He reaches 164 at his heaviest. Being below weight is hardly an ideal condition and Pennock has not stamina to go long routes. Rather would it be his coolness, his easy delivery, his intelligence, that tells him how to save himself. He doesn't work any harder than he has to. He conserves himself. No more wear and tear than is necessary. He has long, pliable muscles, the kind Jim Corbett used to have, though not as firm.

In the box Pennock is a study in conservation, a picture of grace, alert and understanding, with splendid control and unruffled in tight places. As a masterful workman, as a sedative for the excitable, and as a stay for his apparently frail physique, he is one of the pitching wonders of his time.

This church was highly favored last Sabbath evening by having Dr. Bancroft with them, and a very excellent sermon was delivered by him from the theme, "Waiting on God and its Attendant Results."

At the close of the sermon a short congregational meeting was held in which the following officers were elected to supplement those who had been elected some time ago: Elder, Mr. Chandler Smith; Deacons, Mr. Ernest Swan and Mr. Howard Roof; Usher, Mr. A. Morrison.

At noon a Chinese luncheon was served by the ladies of the church, and we all enjoyed it very much, especially trying to eat with the chop sticks. Last week's article spoke of the necessity of careful planning.

First choose your wave length. In the old days amateurs could do anything short of murder below 200 meters. Now only certain bands are assigned to "hams." Only C W and I C W (that is transmission by a tube) are allowed. No spark sets are allowed now for "hams." Phone transmission can be done only in one band. It is necessary to keep well within these bands. For this purpose use a good wavemeter, checking your wave often.

The amateur bands are as follows: (Clip this out and keep it. It is very valuable.)

200-150 meters; 1,500-2,000 kilocycles; amateur only.

85.7-75 meters; 3,500-4,000 kilocycles; amateur, army mobile, naval aircraft and naval vessels working naval aircraft.

42.8-37.5 meters; 7,000-8,000 kilocycles; amateur and army mobile.

21.4-18.7 meters; 14,000-16,000 kilocycles; amateur only.

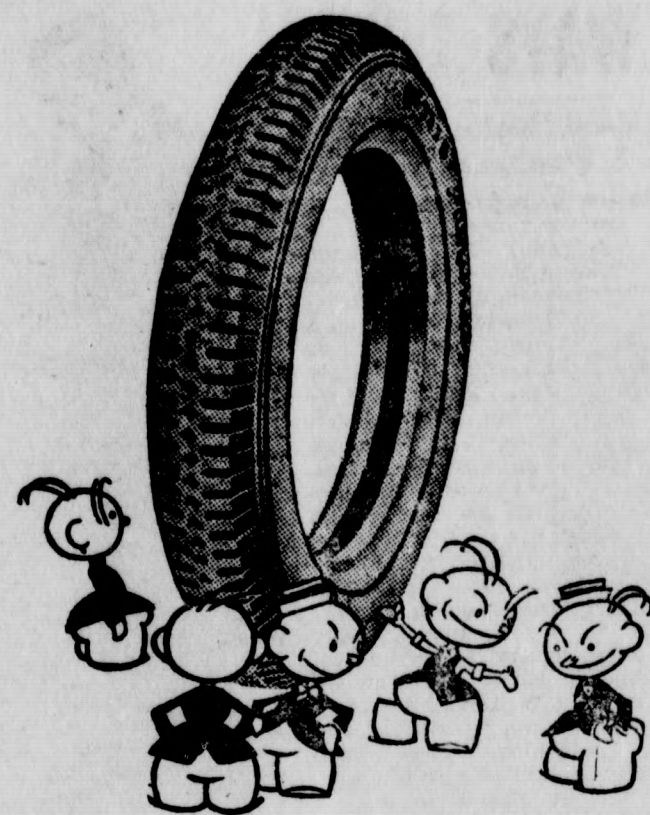

5.35-4.69 meters; 56,000-64,000 kilocycles; amateur only.

7.496-7.477 meters; 400,000-401,000 kilocycles; amateur only.

The only phone band for amateurs is from 85.6 meters to 88.3 meters (or from 3,500 kilocycles to 3,600 kilocycles.) This does not mean that it is for broadcasting. No music or entertainment is to be sent out. It is only a band for conversation or messages.

As the short waves are far better for distance work, these articles will speak mostly of them. The best practical bands at present are 20 meters, 40 meters and 80 meters. The lower one goes (in meters) the greater the distance (within limits), but the more critical the set becomes. Probably 80 meters is the best to start on.

Next week's article will be on power.

No Oratory Necessary

You can leave off the ear muffs with perfect safety when you come in to look at a Pathfinder Tire. We don't have to "talk 'em up."

Pathfinders will speak for themselves—on looks. They're made and guaranteed by the world's largest manufacturers of quality tires—which assures quality. And they're priced so low you'll have a hard time persuading yourself to leave without one.

So—come prepared to buy. We have your size—Clincher, Straight or Balloon.
